Brooklyn in Trouble.

Upon the complaint of Mayor Powell, of Brooklyn, Marvin T. Rodman, Assistant Treasurer of that city, was apprehended on Friday last as a defaulter. An investigation of the accounts revealed a deficiency of $110,000. There seems to be a connecting link between this development and the case of a few weeks ago by the death of Mr. M. H. President of the Trust Company. Rodman was Secretary of that institution and at the same time connected with the City Treasury, to which he is now a defaulter. Moreover, a year ago he failed to account for some $50,000 which the Treasurer, Mr. Sprague, made good. Mr. Rodman in the meantime, being continued in office. Suspicion fell upon him at the time Mr. M. H. defalcated was discovered, but it was not, it seems, until the clamors and indignation of an outraged community impelled the city authorities to a sense of justice that he was apprehended.

The N. Y. Mail of Monday is of the opinion that the King is yet capable of protecting its own interests at but a slight pecuniary loss. Mr. Sprague must suffer the proper penalty of personal loss for the culpable conduct which has allowed him to transfer the responsibility which he was appointed to bear upon the shoulders of another, but the King in general finds it to his interest not to let Mr. Rodman talk too much, and the rumor is now that he will be given opportunity to forfeit the small bail which has been fixed for him. The conquest of the case is the result of King manipulations, for nearly every one connected in it is in the family. If the King shall dare this last outrage upon an abused public, we can only trust that it is the last straw needed to arouse public indignation to the flood tide that shall sweep all off together. It was found in New York that there was a link to the public path, and we trust that this present opportunity which Brooklyn has to follow our example and rid itself from King rule may not go unavailing.

The excitement consequent upon this discovery of the defalcation has subsided and the rumors in regard to frauds and defalcations in other departments of the city government are believed to be without foundation. In the meantime a thorough investigation of the city's accounts is being prosecuted.

The Kelsey Affair.

Some months since Mr. Charles G. Kelsey, of Huntington, Long Island, was tarred and feathered by a company of humorists following a car on a street which he had disappeared. His friends insisted that he had been murdered as well as maltreated, but no positive evidence of the latter crime could be found. A day or two since, however, a body was found in Oyster Bay, which has been fully identified as that of the missing man; and the probability is that the comic rustics who thought it so admirable a joke to torture a defenseless man, will find that their comedy is about to turn into a very serious tragedy.

Kelsey's alleged offence was the writing of grossly indecent letters to a young lady whom he desired to marry. In itself, this was an almost incredible story; but, as it now appears, there is really no evidence at all that he wrote the letters in question. They were not signed with his name, the handwriting is asserted by his brothers to be a clumsy forgery, and the fact that after his disappearance—now known to be singularly coincident with his death—several additional letters were received by the young lady in question, conclusive that some miscreant was playing the dangerous game of Jargon. It is sufficiently difficult to believe that a man of education and refinement should undertake to woo a woman with indecent letters, but that he should persist in this course after his death is altogether too much even for the credulity of the average rural humorist.

We shall probably soon know the whole truth in this matter. Enough, however, is already known to stamp with lasting disgrace the "prominent citizens of Huntington" who were guilty, either as participants or spectators, in the cowardly cruelties that preceded Kelsey's death.—Daily Graphic.

Before the death of Ex-Mayor Kalbfleisch, of Brooklyn, a suit was brought against him a Mrs. Wade for $150,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage, and during the progress of the investigation, the defendant died. It was thought by the heirs that this ended the matter, but the lady, it seems, is of a different mind, and has reopened the case against the executors.

The Delia Corcoran Murder.

The trial of George Byas for the murder of Delia Corcoran is in progress in the Bergen County Court, at Hackensack, N. J., before Judge Badla. Delia Corcoran, the victim, was a good-looking Irish girl, who was employed as a waitress at Excelsior Grove, on the Hudson, about fifteen miles from Jersey City. She was about twenty-five years of age, and was engaged to Patrick Carlin, a young man countryman of hers, who lived on the other side of the river, near Yonkers. He had an engagement to meet her on Thursday night, July 22. He did not see her, and on inquiry found that she had not been seen since the evening of Sunday, July 20. He was positive that she would not have gone away without letting him know of her whereabouts, and he soon arrived at the conclusion that something wrong had happened. He searched along the shore at the foot of the Palisades, and at Lower Closter, a village a quarter of a mile below the grove, he discovered a man named Westervelt who had found his boat adrift on the Monday morning succeeding her disappearance. He rowed out to it and found it full of water and without oars or seats. He baled it out and in the bottom found some hairpins, a tumbled curl, and some bits of ribbon. On the day following a "waterfall," identified subsequently as the property of the missing girl, was picked up on the shore, a short distance further down the stream. On Wednesday, July 23, some colored women saw the corpse of a female floating in the river near Hyler's Landing, two miles below Excelsior Grove. The body was secured, and Coroner Westervelt notified a jury was impaneled, and they came to the conclusion that the deceased was an unknown woman, and came to her death by drowning. The same day the body was buried near the river bank at the landing. Carlin found this out, and applied to the Coroner for permission to exhume the body. This was readily granted. It was Delia Corcoran. Carlin found that she had left the grove in company with some colored people who worked there, and took a sail on the river; that she had been induced to drink, and was taken to the wharf where these people lived. That the party had separated, and that George Byas, a colored man, and a friend of his, had started to go home. They were all more or less intoxicated, and while on the way she had been seized by the hand. The four of them had then taken her and through the body was found. The man Byas and his alleged associates were arrested and held for trial.

A train on the Detroit and Milwaukee Railroad met with an accident near Ionia, Mich., on Friday last. The engine broke down, and while standing on the track a freight train rushed into two cars, killing five persons and wounding a number more. Both cars were smashed, the sleeping-cars being badly wrecked. The freight conductor could not see the signal, owing to a dense fog. From the testimony before a coroner's jury it appears that the accident was due to the neglect of the brakeman, sent by the conductor of the passenger train to flag the freight train to go far enough away from the train to allow the signal.

Governor Burbank, of Dakota, has received a dispatch from the citizens of Grand Forks, Dakota, stating that the Sioux and Crow Indians have left their reservations, and are plundering property and acting in a very hostile and defiant manner. The citizens ask for arms and ammunition to protect themselves against the Indians.

Rumors of a massacre of United States troops at Fort Sill have prevailed during the past week, but correspondence from the place up to Aug 24th make no mention of Indian troubles or apprehended attacks.

The Forty-second Annual Exhibition of the American Institute will be formally opened in the Rink, corner of Third avenue and Sixty-fourth street, at noon, on Wednesday, Sept. 10, and will remain open to the public until Nov. 15.

As a Country Home for Business Men and Others.

BLOOMFIELD is located four miles from the centre of Newark, and twelve miles from New York City, is on Elevated Ground, with as beautiful sites for Homes of families as any within a radius of 25 miles of New York. Its location is healthy beyond dispute. Its

Facilities of Travel

to Newark and to New York are unsurpassed: the Newark & Bloomfield Road (D. L. & W. to New York) with 22 trains daily; the Montclair (to New York direct) with nearly as many; the Watchung, nearly completed; nine depots on the three roads and so located as to accommodate all parts of the town. A Horse Car Railroad to Newark, cars running every half hour.

Educational Privileges.

Bloomfield was the pioneer township for FREE EDUCATION in this State. We have now as fine a Public School as any in New Jersey—the buildings, grounds, etc., as well as the conduct of the various departments—High School, Grammar and Primary—are all that can be desired.

Our Churches

embrace the principal denominations, and all are in a flourishing condition. The moral and social status of the community is of a high order.

Improvements, &c.

The permanent mapping of the town for streets and squares is being effected. The sidewalks are being generally flagged or planked. Gas is already introduced. Commodious and artistic dwellings are being erected. Improvements in opening and grading heavy taxes, but commensurate with the wants of the community. The local taxes have been lower and will continue to be lower than most of our neighboring townships. Bloomfield has never been bonded; neither for railway nor any other purposes. Her citizens are enterprising and progressive, but hold to the principle—Pay as you go. There are numerous stores and workshops of various kinds, several first-class manufacturing, none of them, however, of a character detrimental to health or morals. It has also a live Weekly Newspaper, devoted to the interests of the town collectively.

Real Estate.

Improved and unimproved is offered at prices below those of other towns the same distance from the large cities. Property here has steadily advanced in value for the last fifteen years. The causes which produced that advance have just now greatly augmented. Intelligent business men can judge at once whether this town is not SAFE as a place of investment, independent of the wish for a pleasant and desirable home. Improved and unimproved lands in great variety may be found upon application to our Real Estate Agencies.
